What is Cannabis Oil?

Cannabis Oil is a full extract of the Cannabis plant that has been used for decades to help prevent and treat cancer, pain, insomnia, anxiety, depression, diabetes and many other ailments.

The cannabis plant was widely used by ancient cultures and cannabis medicines were used until the late 1930's.

According to the US Library of medicine the health benefits of cannabis oil have been confirmed in over 1500 scientific studies done by credible medical institutions and practitioners.

The Cannabis plant contains over 500 natural compounds including Terpenes and resins in particular Tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), Cannabidiol (CBD), and other cannabinoids. Cannabinoids are the most numerous of these compounds and play an essential role in healing.

Humans and mammals have endocannabinoid systems (ECS) with receptors in every organ in the body and naturally produce small quantities of cannabinoids.

The Human endocannabinoid system is a "master regulator" that plays a critical role in regulating physiological and neurological processes.

Cannabinoids were naturally occurring in the human diet until the early 1940's when feral hemp was still used predominantly as animal feed was outlawed and eradicated resulting in insufficient cannabinoid intake.

Cannabinoids aid in healing as it allows the body to achieve a state homeostasis.
